FASCINATING FACTS

If you're planning to drive in Europe this summer, remember that death rates on many European highways are much higher than in the United States. Annual fatality rates (per 10,000 vehicles) are: Yugoslavia, 11.8; Portugal, 10.7; Greece, 8.1; Spain, 6.1; Belgium, 5.2; France 4.8; and Austria, 4.5 - according to Consumer Reports Travel Letter. Risky driving habits, high speeds and/or poor roads contribute to the hazards.

We hope Bob Wilson, CFO, looks both ways when he arrives in Paris for vacation next week. Have a great time!
